

----- Original Message -----

From: "Mark Parker" <markdavidparker@gmail.com>

To: <asuenram@swmtlaw.com>

Sent: Sunday, November 08, 2009 11:29 AM

Subject: Supreme Court nominees

>I write to make comment on the fine group from which the Commission will > need to make a difficult choice. I do not know all of them so it would be > difficult and unfair to suggest that I have a favorite objectively chosen.
> I can comment, however, that in my view the Supreme Court needs someone > with > dirt-under-the-fingernails trial experience representing people tangled up > in the judicial process in a family law issue or a criminal matter. There > are many paths to the high court, no more noble than the other. Many have > chosen the path of academia or public service. However, the Supreme Court > is an ensemble for a reason. Many views are needed. When I look as the > current composition I just do not see the faces of those who have > represented the damned or tried to untangle the mess of a family law fight > in the trenches.
>
> --
> Mark D. Parker
>